Welcome

Yay! Purim is here: a day of laughter, costumes, and hidden miracles! Enjoy this fun and educational packet to help you celebrate the day.

I hope you enjoy these activities, and please send me pictures of your completed pages! I love to share them on social media.

I didn't want to make this too easy, so I decided not to include the answers here. If you get stuck on any of the activities and need solutions, send me a message on thatjewishmoment.com. :)

My name is Sari Kopitnikoff, and I am an educator, illustrator, and author. I especially love figuring out how to use fresh ideas to bring fun and meaning to Jewish life.

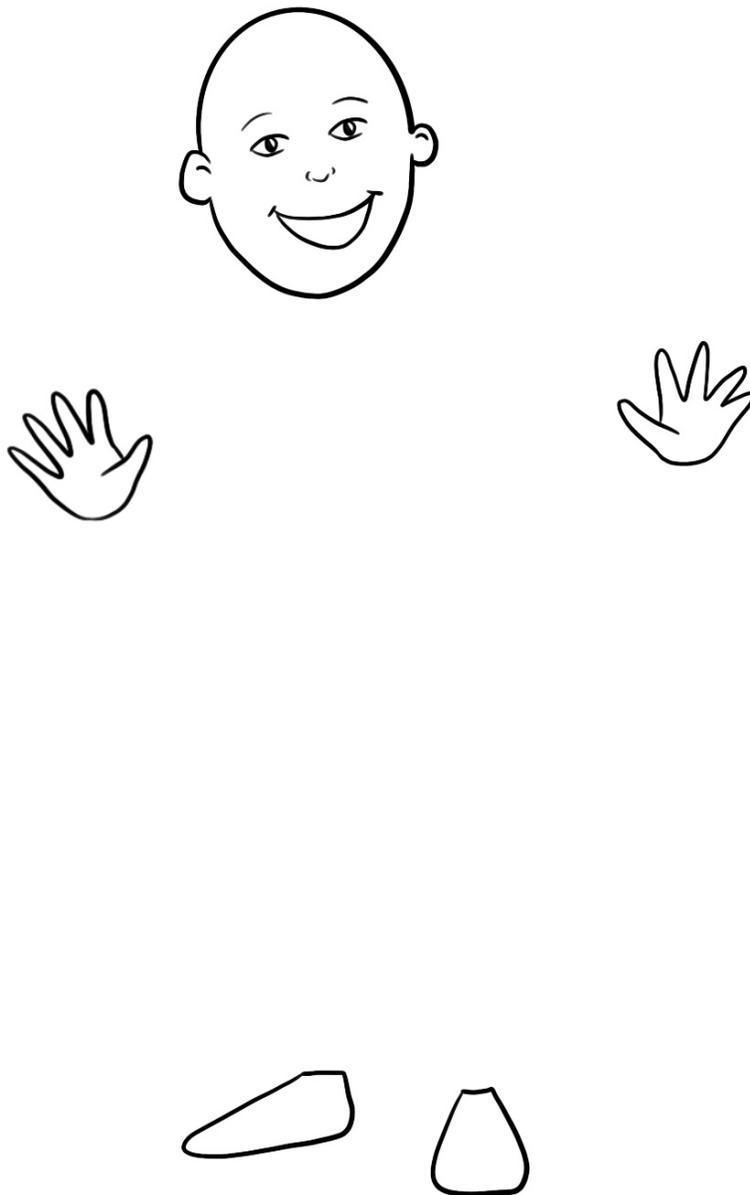

Questions? Comments?
I'd love to hear from you!

Mask Up

Decorate this mask! When you're done, cut it out and punch holes in the sides. Tie a string through the back and make small knots in the front. Gently poke your scissors through the mask's eyes (or have an adult do it) to allow you to see through it.

Make Your Own Noisemaker

How to Make It:

Cut out and color the hamantaschen-decorated noisemaker below. Cut out the two triangles in the center. Fold the noisemaker along the lines so it looks like the image below (Figure 1). Now you're ready to make some noise!

Figure 2:

How to Use It:

Hold the noisemaker between your fingers. Put your lips right up against it and blow hard (Figure 2). It should make a loud shrieking sound.

A special collection of activities to do while reading the Megillah

Bring the Megillah alive with the following interactive challenges. In the classroom, these can be used to prepare for Purim. At home, they can be used during Megillah reading.

Here are the activities included:

Getting All Feely: experiencing the emotional story of Esther

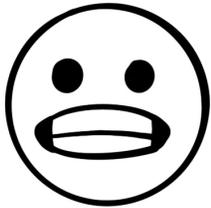

Do a Number: counting all the numbers mentioned throughout

A Search for Things: a close read of the details in the story

Boo Who?: keeping track of how many times the gragger is in action

Getting All Feely

As you go through the Megillah, imagine it's your first time learning the story. Fill out the emoji chart below, listing a time in the story you felt each emotion.

Enjoyed this packet?

Check out these new, original Purim products from That Jewish Moment!

Hi, I'm Sari! Whether this is your first That Jewish Moment packet, or you've been using these the whole year, I'm glad you're here. I've been hard at work creating fun Jewish products, games, and programs. Take a look below. And happy Purim!

A special Purim virtual challenge:

You come home on Purim morning, after being out for a short while, and you see a mysterious mishloach manot bag at your door, with no name attached. Someone must have left it there... but whodunnit? Find the hidden clues and piece together bits of the story until you figure out who left the bag.

This is a fun and challenging activity for kids, adults, and families. It's also great for schools, synagogues, and organizations.

An original That Jewish Moment experience.

An Interactive Puppet Show for Kids

Explore Purim with Sari and her orangutan friend, Ori. Play some games, engage in activities, make some crafts, and have some laughs. This (pre-recorded) puppet show is for kids ages 3-7 and comes with an activity packet to follow along with the show.

Find them both on thatjewishmoment.com/shop.
